A "Dead Game Sport."

As almost everyone in the Great Basin knows, Judge Goodwin is a "dead game sport" in his way and is always ready for a finish bout with an antagonist with his pen or upon the restrum. His sporting proclivities, however, have got him into trouble and he has been marked "meat" by the members of the local cigar-makers' union. This is probably the first news of the impending "scrap" the Judge has received, but the Referee loves him too well to allow him to be taken off his guard. In December last a New York cigar firm wrote the Judge and asked permission to name a cigar after his most famous book. To ask a favor of the Judge is a much harder task than it is for him to grant it, and by the next mail the following characteristic answer was speeded across the continent:

GENTLEMEN:—Regarding your request I have no objection. A great many people have been thinking for a good while that the Comstock Club ought to go up in smoke. Go ahead; only do not make the cigars too fearfully bad.

In due time the brand made its appearance in this city. The boxes were handsomely decorated and the cover was adorned with an illuminated portrait of the Judge (as he looked thirty years ago), and beneath it in clear-cut chirography appeared his well known autograph. The cigar, of course enjoyed "a run" and then the local cigar-makers raised a howl of indignation, and the leader they howled the faster the cigar sold. It is denounced as a "scab" cigar, and it is understood the union will officially take cognizance of the affront to union labor at its next meeting. The Judge, being a Home Industry advocate, will at once see the pertinency of the statement that he "is a dead game sport." He now has on his hands the fight of his life. —Salt Lake Argus.

Assessment Work for 1894.

The desire of many miners that the provisions of the law suspending assessment work for 1873 be extended to 1894 meets with a great deal of opposition in Congress. True, no test of sentiment has yet been made, but it is a fact that when the bill for 1893 was proposed it also included 1894. This proposition encountered much objection, and, to save the bill, Congressman Bell, of Colorado, went before the House Committee and consented to an amendment striking out 1894. In this shape the measure became a law; otherwise, it was certain to be defeated.

It cannot be said that the miners of the gold States take a great deal of interest in the measure; at least they do not by any means consider it vital to their welfare. In the silver States the matter is regarded quite differently. If it were possible to exempt the silver mines only, there would be no great objection to suspending the provisions of law in their favor alone; but it is not. If any names for precious metals are favored, all must, in the nature of things, be included. What ever is done, it is desirable that it be done very quickly. We think it probable that a bill for 1894, containing exactly the same provisions as last year's law, can be passed by this Congress; but it ought to be done at the present session before any assessment work is done and while all have a chance to secure its benefits. —Mining and Scientific Press.

We learn from the press that a free coinage paper is wanted in Boston and a movement is on foot to establish one. That is a fine opening for the Reno Gazette or Virginia City Enterprise. They are just the papers to suit the Bostonians. They are bimetalist of the Hub style—"gold for money, silver for spoons," and whether gold or silver or paper they are for wool and the grand old party. This suits Boston. —Silver State.

Dun & Co. say that during the past year commercial securities have declined 12.9 per cent. This is the natural and legitimate result of the single gold standard, and yet strange to say, Wall street wants more of it.

Heath's Trial.

Fresno, Cal., April 24.—In Judge Webb's court yesterday morning the trial of Richard S. Heath for the murder of Louis B. McWhirter was set for June 18th. The defense gave notice that it would move for a change of place of trial to some other county, on the ground that Heath could not get justice in Fresno.

In the suit of Miss Jennie Brophy, to recover the sum of $3000 due the estate of the late John T. Brady, from the order of Chosen Friends, the jury came into court last Friday and announced that they were unable to agree and were discharged. The case will be retried, and the local physicians who attended Brady in his last illness, and his two nurses have been subpoenaed as witnesses to prove that his mind was in a normal state when he made his last will and testament, bequeathing the policy to his brother William. —Enterprise.
